

The Dragon Whisperer Newsletter

Winter-2011

Winter 2011

So far this winter really fizzled. What happened to Winter? Well, I guess that is climate change.

In any event, there is nothing more comforting than snuggling up with a warm furry friend for a nap or on a cold winter's night. I always thank my furry companions with lots of hugs and kisses for keeping me warm.

As you see by the picture at the left, we are out every day, twice a day, every day, come rain, snow, or sun for our walks.

Do yourself a favor, go for a walk in the forest!

Events

Hard Drive Migration

Thanks to a friend of mine who sent me a new hard drive , I was able to migrate my main PC from a 250 gb hard drive to a roomy one terabyte hard drive. Tip: Do not use Microsoft's image maker backup software, it does not work!

Now, I have a ton of hard drive space for all my stuff. And, before you ask, yes, I was running out of space on the old hard drive. It sure is nice to have the extra space.

Web Log - Blog

Who would have thought that here would be so many readers looking at my ramblings? During January 2012, I had over 5,000 people visit my blog.

Anne McCaffrey 4/1/26 – 11/26/11

The literary world has lost a great author. And, I have lost one of my teachers.

Reading List for the Quarter

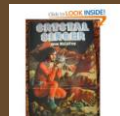

Spam Vs the Vampire

Author: Elizabeth Ann Scarborough

Raven Cursed

Author: Faith Hunter

Crystal Singer

Author: Anne McCaffrey

Next Newsletter

Spring 2012